

A Weird and disturbing dream.

Writer

Leslie Blackwell

Publisher

ScribeSlice 2016

I was aboard some sort of craft visiting various planets. The crew and I were playing cards, watching a movie - we became characters within the movie.

The movie ended and craft landed on an alien planet. A close friend and I explored the surroundings (which were pretty much the same as a earth). We came across what looked to be a cul de sac with banks that dropped away from the roadside. Down below were groups of small animals with signs stating what each a creature was, like one might see at a zoo; some of the small creatures were asleep. There was also a den full of badgers or something similar.

My friend and I both agreed that it would not be suitable for me to live here as the creatures might attack and kill the pet cat that I owned.

Further afield there was a department store which we both entered to buy a Christmas presents. I was after a particular present. A customer services rep told me that only one shop had this item at a reduced cost. I got separated from my and I walked outside hoping to find her.

The streets around me was crowded with people, among them were several of my senior managers from where I worked. Somehow knew I was in trouble with them for some sort of intergalactic crime and would surely lose my job because of previous written warning.

This had become public knowledge and people were arriving to witness the event. A woman led me back into the building which had a strange lockdown process for prisoners that stopped them from getting away.

I was then taken down a long narrow corridor and arrived at the threshold into another part of the store separated by a large draping curtain which followed my every move; barring me from getting through. There was also some sort of force field holding me back.

My CEO suddenly arrived and gave me a brief talk about what to expect throughout the trial. Last port of the dream they had arranged some jailer to put chains on me, like an old convict. The people within the shop went about their business as the jailer pinned the large chain firstly to my ear then attached a claw like devise to the top of my head. I could feel the chain stretching and digging into me each time that I moved.

It was then that I woke up.

© Leslie Blackwell 2016

ScribeSlice